

When it comes to friendship, there's some kind of unspoken fear that we have to have it all together or our friends won't want to be our friends anymore. Do you find yourself worrying that if your friends could see your *insert weakness, fault, or fear here* they'd go running? What if friendship was less about two perfect people finding each other and more about finding the people who compliment and fit in with your own humanity?

THIS IS SUCKER PUNCHED

When it comes to clothes and shoes, I'm willing to spend a little more money on something that fits well and is super comfortable. And if something will last forever and is made of sustainable materials? Take. My. Money. This is exactly why I love Rothy's shoes. I've got three pairs and am always eyeing their new designs. I continue to be impressed by the durability and comfort of a shoe made from recyclable materials and I adore having a fun pop of color on my feet. My first pair were cherry red and I think they're still my favorites! And when they get tired and sad looking? Throw them in the wash for a refresh and they'll look good as new. You deserve comfortable, sustainable, and stylish shoes and Rothy's got them for both men and women in several incredible styles. Get $20 off your order when you use the link BeckyLMcCoy.com/Rothys. That's BeckyLMcCoy.com, slash, R-O-T-H-Y-S.

The song "I'd Like To Teach The World to Sing" of 1971 Coca-Cola commercial fame was making a big comeback when I was in elementary school in the 90s. I remember standing on the steps of the local museum as we sang it for one of our chorus concerts. And, while I tend to be more of a cynic than a hippie, that song wormed its way into my heart. I still hear the "la la la la la"s echoing in the foyer when I visit that museum.

I think it's the picture painted in the third verse:

*I'd like to see the world for once
All standing hand in hand
And hear them echo through the hills
For peace throughout the land*

When I think of why we need each other, I see us standing hand in hand, ideally with our feet on the equator, animated in the style of School House Rock.

I'm being silly but there's something there.

The image of people holding hands as far as the eye can see reminds me that being human is a beautiful thing. And it's the holding hands part that is like a neon sign that says, "it's okay if you aren't perfect! We're all holding each other up!"

When I'm face to face with my weaknesses, I'm not out of luck, forced to chin up and push through - someone grabs my hand and walks through it with me. And when I notice the people around me struggling, I grab their hands, too.

My weaknesses might be your areas of strength. My strengths can fill in your gaps.

Being human isn't a liability: it just means we need each other.

Here are three books to help you be vulnerable in your friendships:

- Big Friendship by Aminou Sow and Ann Friedman
- Friendship in the Age of Loneliness by Adam Smiley Poswolsky
- The Art of Showing Up by Rachel Wilkerson Miller

You'll find links to these along with a full transcript of this episode at BeckyLMcCoy.com/podcast/76

I've always been someone who needs comfort from a shoe - I can't wear it just because it looks good. Enter Rothys - my feet can be comfortable AND fashionable. Their original flat is an award winner and I've been eyeing the driving loafers for years now (I've already got the flat and the point). Get $20 off your order when you use the link BeckyLMcCoy.com/Rothys. That's BeckyLMcCoy.com, slash, R-O-T-H-Y-S.

If you enjoyed this episode, be sure to follow Sucker Punched in whichever podcast app you use.

If you're already a regular listener, please rate and review Sucker Punched in your podcast app.

Share this episode with a friend and let me know what you think! You can find me on my website at BeckyLMcCoy.com or on Twitter and Instagram @BeckyLMcCoy. Get my 4 Mantras For When I'm Overwhelmed at BeckyLMcCoy.com/4Mantras and as a bonus you'll get sneak peeks into future projects as well as early access to future events and retreats!

If you found this episode encouraging or helpful, share it with a friend and remember: it's okay to need other people. You're doing great.